

Dinosaur Meets Electronic Mouse

A dinosaur, just back from extinction, had centuries of techno inventions to think on. Still old Brontosaurus kept his blinkers on as he surveyed the digital revolution.

Brontosaurus stared at electronic mouse.
Electronic mouse stared back at Brontosaurus.
Neither of them had got the other sussed.
Both creatures, you could say, were nonplussed.

Electronic mouse said: ‘Don’t come too close.
I wouldn’t want you to catch my virus.’

Dino replied: ‘The last mouse I saw... let me think ... was the day before I found myself extinct.’

Of course, that was millennia before your time
when mice like you possessed what’s called a squeak.’
Electronic mouse burrowed into her screen and sighed:
‘This Dino has some way to go to becoming a Geek!’