

Candy Gourlay says:

On the white space below, create a scene in which two characters meet for the first time. You can choose any setting, any situation.

You are welcome to base it on a scene from one of my books: a sister meeting a long lost brother like in Tall Story. Or a tribal boy seeing an American for the first time, like in Bone Talk.

Here's the thing: the character your hero is seeing for the first time? It's YOU.

What would your hero say if they met YOU?

When Andi met Bernardo

Tall Story

Who cut his hair? It was horrible, chopped around his ears like a jigsaw. And don't get me started on the suit, made of some kind of shiny nylon, and the tie that hung like it had been pasted on with Velcro. On his feet he wore some deeply ugly sandals with black socks.

When Samkad met Mister William

Bone Talk

... Its nose was MASSIVE, speckled with orange spots, like the blemishes on overripe fruit. It had no lips. And its eyes! They were eerie, alien things: bright and blue like the sky.

White space for writing a scene.